

A photograph of a classroom setting. In the foreground, a young boy with light brown hair, wearing a yellow t-shirt, is sitting at a white desk, focused on writing in a notebook with a pen. On his desk are some colored pencils and a blue folder. Behind him, a teacher in a light green shirt and dark pants stands, holding a blue folder and a green pencil. To the right, another desk has a large, tan-colored privacy screen. In the background, another desk has a grey privacy screen. The scene is softly lit, creating a calm educational atmosphere.

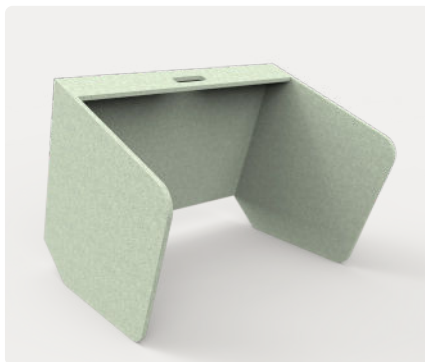

Flex Study

Flex Study is a mobile privacy screen that can easily be set up on any table. It is made from a single piece, so no parts can get lost. When unfolded, the side panels and small roof create a cozy, focused workspace. The angled form of the screen allows light to enter and makes it easy to run a power cable to a laptop. Simple, practical, and perfect for flexible learning environments.
